WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 11, 1889.

"Sunset" Cox is dying.

The Pennsylvania Democrats in State Convention proclaim all for Tariff Reform.

Jeff Davis, Roger Q. Mills, Addison Canock and Judge David Terry were all born in Todd county.

The disbursements of the Pension Bureau for July and August were $35,000,000. The surplus is rapidly disappearing.

The Carlisle Mercury is opposed to making Jeff Davis' birthday a legal holiday in the Southern States. The objection is good.

Mr. Samuel O. Graves, editor of the Lebanon Standard and Times, died Monday morning. He was a native of Christian county, had practiced law in Louisville, and was a lawyer.

Phil Armour, the great Chicago meat man, refuses to obey the summons of the United States Senatorial Dressed Beef Committee. Mr. Armour has a way of taking care of himself.

Editor Bruce Champ, of the Bourbon News, and Miss Lizzie Coopers, of Georgetown, were married last Wednesday, and are making a tour of the East. We have thought for some time that there was something wrong with the old boy, and so there was. Now he will come home and get on a good paper like he used to.

A burglar entered the residence of Gen. John S. Williams, near Mt. Sterling, and was shot at by his daughter, Miss Ida Hall. It seemed some valuable articles, and escaped. The carriage driver was arrested on suspicion and lodged in jail. His friends entered into a conspiracy to release him, but the plot was discovered, and nine of the gang put in jail.

MRS. POLK CLERKS.

The widow of President James K. Polk celebrated the 50th anniversary of her birth on Monday, at Nashville. She received a number of visitors and talked about many things of the present, as well as of the long ago. She is active in mind and body and spends much of her time in reading and writing. She is a great admirer of Mr. Cleveland.

WOODHILL AND CLAFELIN AGAIN.

The world has for a time lost sight of these conspicuous figures—Victoria C. Woodhull and Tennessee Claflin. The former married an English banker, John Biddle Martin, and the latter married Sir Francis Cook, Bart., Vice-Count of Montrouge, and the sea of oblivion was fast gathering over them; but they have designs, even yet, on the ladder of fame. They announce themselves for President and Vice President of the United States—1892.

When the Taylor brothers announced themselves to Governor of the State of Tennessee, it was deemed most unusual. But now we have the curiosity of two sisters announcing themselves for President and Vice President of the United States, and what is even more remarkable, they are residents of England and members of—at least one of them—the nobility. The ticket, it is thought, will be a strong one in the pre-emptive election of London. Tower Hill, Old City Road and Maiden Lane will go solidly for them; but we fear the distinguished ladies will not be elected without a few votes on this side of the Atlantic.

A GOOD MAN GONE WRONG.

The Stanford Journal, whose editor sought to know better, makes this announcement:

The National Editorial Association is not composed of the leading editors of the country, and the object of its meeting seems more for the benefit of those who love to dead-head on railroads and communities, than for any special benefit to the profession.

We are sure that our friend Walton must have been suffering with a violent attack of poor information, when he wrote the above. The members of the National Association stop at the lotels and pay their own bills, a thing that the members of the Kentucky Press Association have never done, until the last two meetings. The members of the National Association pay transportation prices ranging from one fare to two full fares for the round trip, while the members of the Kentucky Press Association never pay a cent. The National Association is always given a banquet and an excursion. The Kentucky Press Association is always given a banquet and an excursion.

It is especially recommended that the essayists prepare their papers carefully in advance of the meeting, and they should not be able to be present to them to "Secretary Farmers' Institute," Bowling Green.

tended the Kentucky Press Association but once in fourteen years. The big editors of New York and Boston not only do not belong to the National Press Association, but do not belong to their State Associations, nor do they even belong to their cities or their houses. They spend most of their time in Europe and employ smaller fry to run their papers.

Our neighbor will have to pick his fence and shoot at something that he can hit.

"OH, NO, NOT FOR JOE."

It must be admitted that Joe Blackburn did a righteous thing when he lifted Bill Henderon from his rest by the ear, and deserves the thanks of the decent people, but what is that compared to the gratitude due Jim McKenzie from a shaking chick wretched nation for the repel of the quinine tariff. Who else but Jim McKenzie with his brilliant burning sarcasm could have stuck lobbyists speeches and shamed a Republican Congress into repealing that onerous tax on chlorine, boric-oxides and swamp fever? No other living man could have done it, and Kentucky might as well let Joe stand a while and send the silver tongued Jim to the United States Senate, and let him give them a few words to say.

At Abbeville, Miss., a largely attended convention of ex-Confederate soldiers opened September 4th. Its object is to organize an association, representing all the states that furnished troops to the Southern Confederacy, with a view of the collection and preservation of data and personal recollections of the war.

Capt. H. J. Todd and wife celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday evening last. They were the recipient of many handsome presents, and the occasion was a happy and joyous one to all present. They received the congratulations of every one in the community, who wish them a long life of pleasure and happiness.—Frankfort Argus.

Col. D. R. Collier received his commission on Tuesday, as Surveyor of the Port at Louisville, and took charge Wednesday. His subordinate officials, taken from this county, are: Geo. R. Bradley, Wm. Berkely, Jr., Wm. McJohnston and his son, W. H. Collier. The Colonel has used good judgment in making his appointments, as these boys are both worthy and competent.—Lancaster News.

Mrs. Angelo Rusconi, said to be one of the richest women in Kentucky, was frightened to death by a "ghost" that walked nightly in a store at Bellevue, Ky. Mrs. Rusconi went to see the specter, and when it appeared she dropped dead. A thorough investigation proved the ghostly visitor to be the reflection of an electric light some distance away.—Clipper.

J. T. Jones, a well-to-do farmer, has mysteriously disappeared. Ten days ago he went from Nicholasville, had a check cashed at Danville and left for his home in Garrard County. He was seen in a stranger in a road wagon and was recognized by a Miss Green, on Dix River, late the evening he left Danville. He is supposed to have had his person when he left Danville between $200 and $1,000.—Nicholasville Journal.

Antt. Colita Douglass, aged 85 years, step mother of Mr. James F. Douglass, with whom she makes her home, after failing off one of her shoes and laying it upon a shelf stepped out last Sunday evening. As soon as the situation was discovered the family was so alarmed that they gave the alarm to the neighborhood and in a very short time not less than fifteen men were out hunting for her and continued the search until midnight, when they were driven in by heavy rain. Search was instituted early next morning and after a four hour search she was found in an old field about 1,000 yards from the house. When found she was barefooted, the only part of her foot gear remaining on her was a portion of one stocking leg, while her other clothing was torn almost to pieces by the harsh and bushes, and she was nearly frozen, having remained out in the rain all night.—London Echo.

Gen. Duke's proposition for the organization of a constabulary force, after the order of the Texas Rangers, for service in the lawless mountain counties of Kentucky, will meet with popular favor if Morgan's right arm will pledge himself in advance to take the command. After all, the railroad is to prove the peace power in that wild section, but as Gen. Duke has considerable experience pulling in a conspiracy to release him, but the plot was discovered, and nine of the gang put in jail.

This subject is left for general discussion, and members are requested to come prepared to give their views.

EVENING SESSION.
1. Ten o'clock a.m., call to order by the President.

2. President's annual address.

3. Welcoming Address by Hon. T. Smith, Mayor of the city.

4. Response by Thos. W. Scott, of Woodford county.

5. The Kentucky Farmer—is His Occupation a Paying One? If not, Why?

6. Response by Wm. Scott, of Woodford county.

7. The Kentucky Farmer—is His Occupation a Paying One? If not, Why?

8. Afternoon session.

9. Call to order by Mr. James F. Douglass, Ex-Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals. Judge Putes was born in Franklin county, Va., in 1805, came to Woodford with his father in 1822 and resided here until 1827 when he came again into the Hocker family, Mrs. Logan's father having owned it since 1810, and built the house at a cost of over $10,000.—Sandford Journal.

Another record was smashed at the Westchester track, New York, Aug. 27, when Hindcraft easily beat Casius, Besse Jone, etc., in the Owners' Handicap, a mile and five furlongs. Still there is a great difference between seventy-five pounds on Hindcraft, and the 115 pounds which Exile carried when he made the best on record (24½) at Sheep Meadow, Bay, September 11, 1889. Hindcraft ran the same distance in 2:43, and though the performance in itself is not a great one, it stamps Hindcraft as well worth the $12,000 which his owners expect that he will bring at the forthcoming sale.

Bob Ingraham, "Unfled Bob," broken out in the newspapers again, and is getting such an amount of free advertising it is shrewdly suspected that he is preparing for another feature this year will escape frost. It will also grade high.

The dry weather which was beginning to call forth much complaint from the trade in view of the large rainfall and it is now thought that much damage has been done to that part of the crop which was about ready for the market being especially true of the barley and other offerings of barley have been very large again this week and there is no change to note in price from last week.
